Seneca Libraries

Each campus has a full-service library, accessible online via library.senecapolytechnic.ca. The website provides access to extensive Library resources, including full-text magazine and newspaper articles, streaming video, 'Ask Us' Virtual Reference services, policies, tutorials, and more. You can also access the library page with dedicated information for faculty: seneca.libanswers.com. Click here for an informational video created for faculty about Seneca Libraries.

Library support for your classes

Instructions are available online to support your students with research assignments. Instruction covers topics such as effective research, academic honesty, and citation. Some examples include:

- Synchronous information literacy instruction for your students customized to your course and assignments – contact your liaison librarian to discuss options.

Research and Citation Standard

You can refer to the library's website for MLA resources for your specific school, as well as Research & Citation guides that outline the MLA Style of citing research. Other 'styles' may be used, based on your preference. This information is also available in Seneca's Guide to Research & Citation: MLA and APA Style, which each first-year student is required to purchase through the Seneca Library.

Questions about copyright?

Start with an overview of Seneca Copyright Basics; A copyright team is available to answer any additional questions that you may have at the following email: copyright@senecapolytechnic.ca.
