Strides for Students: The Nanji Foundation Nursing Walk took place this past weekend, and saw dedicated participants take strides towards supporting nursing education at Seneca. Challengers, motivated by the cause, walked a remarkable 8 kilometers, matching the distance covered by a nurse's during a demanding 12-hour shift.

The challengers successfully raised an impressive $2,715 through their fundraising efforts. This achievement reflects the unwavering support for aspiring nursing students and the appreciation for the invaluable contributions made by nurses in our communities.

Congratulations to the 2023 Strides for Students Challengers! The top three participants from the 2023 challenge are:

1. Anonymous Simulationist, Nanji Foundation School of Nursing
2. Maria May Dean, Nanji Faculty of Applied Arts & Health Sciences
3. Anonymous Chair, Nanji Foundation School of Nursing

The fundraising momentum does not stop here. Supporters and well-wishers are encouraged to continue making contributions until Sunday, June 25, at 11:59 p.m., in a final push to reach their goal of $5,000 which will unlock an additional $5,000 in matching funds, amplifying the impact of every donation.

100% of donations directly benefit the Nanji Foundation Bursary in Nursing. This initiative aims to provide aspiring nursing students with financial assistance, enabling them to pursue their dreams and contribute to the healthcare profession.

To support the fundraising campaign and help these dedicated challengers surpass their target, visit the Support a Challenger page and make a donation today. Together, we can make a difference and invest in the future of nursing education.
