Accessibility and Universal Design for Learning

Version 5

Published 9/1/2020 by Petra Misaljevic   Last updated 11/21/2020 2:48 AM by Ashley Ribbel

Under the Accessibility for Ontarians with Disabilities Act (AODA, 2005) it is your responsibility to ensure that all of your documents, powerpoints, videos, images, pdfs, videos, etc., are in accessible formats.

To learn how to create accessible documents, see the Creating Accessible Documents.

Universal Design for Learning (UDL) is a framework to improve and optimize teaching and learning for all people based on scientific insights into how humans learn. UDL guidelines offer suggestions to ensure all learners can access and participate in a meaningful way in your classes.

tags : classroom-essentials, teaching-and-learning-centre, universal-design-for-learning